

Getting the highest value from the legal directories

09:30 - 13:00, Wednesday September 24, 2008
AC Cuzco Hotel, Madrid

Recent years have seen an explosion in the number of international legal directories aiming to research the quality of law firms, and their individual lawyers, and an increasingly wide variety of rankings and league tables.

Some law firms view these directories and rankings as an important opportunity to promote the high quality of their practices and lawyers, while for others they are a major headache.

Partners report that their participation in the major international directories is increasingly time-consuming and expensive and yet may still not adequately reflect their true skills and market reputation.

The directory and legal ranking submission process – for titles such as Chambers, IFLR, Legal 500, mergermarket, ^{PLC}Which Lawyer? etc – has for many become the biggest annual marketing challenge.

At this unique Master Class, representatives from Iberian law firms will be able to meet senior executives and publishers of some of the most prominent international directories to discuss the following key questions.

Issues covered

- Catalyst or catastrophe – is the growth in market information good or bad for the legal profession, which lawyers and law firms most benefit?
- What are the advantages and potential returns on investment from participating in the legal directories – do clients actually use them?
- What is the clients' perspective and should law firms provide their details to researchers?
- Are the league tables and rankings all the same – or should firms prioritise?
- How to get the best results – what is the inside advice from the publishers and researchers themselves?
- How to best manage the directory submission process – making it more cost effective and less time consuming for partners?

Methodology

The Master Class will be highly practical based upon the concrete experience of leading law firms. It will be led by top London consultant Chris Scoble and participants will hear practical case studies on how international law firms – such as Dewey Ballantine, Herbert Smith, Orrick and White & Case – have found their own solutions to the directory and ranking issue.

The presentations and case studies will be followed by a panel debate with senior experts, including the publishers and researchers of some of the most prominent legal directories.

Exclusive research – Iberian Lawyer will present new research on the client perspective of the international directories and their various research processes. Are clients happy for lawyers to pass on their details, or to act as references, or do they perceive the research and enquiry process as an annoying distraction? Which directories are the most professional in their approach?

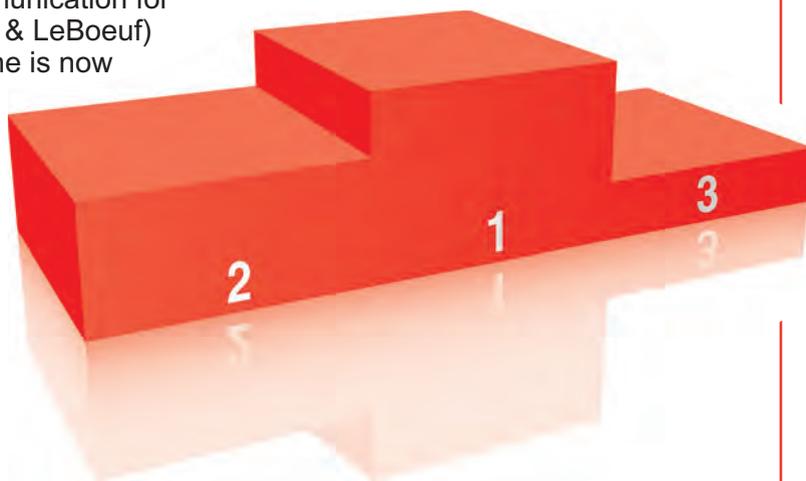

Participants will gain the following key benefits

- A better understanding of the different directory types – who to work with (and invest time and marketing budget) in order to best reach the target client or referral audience
- A better understanding of the different research processes and ranking criteria – what information do the directories really need and when do they want it
- How to make the submission process work better (and be less painful) – getting the best results by recycling and leveraging information and data
- How to make the entire process more time efficient and cost effective – playing to firms' strengths for maximum ranking potential and marketing impact
- How to minimise partner input and maximise output – strategies for achieving the best results
- The clients' perspective on the directory submission process
